No Room for Revolution.

There is a renewal of the talk that th national campaign is taking the shape of a contest of the rich against the poor. This time it comes from New York. The democratic managers are represented as regretting the fact, but as being more than willing to grapple with the opposition on that line. They accuse the republicans of drawing the line, and cite the rally of large property interests throughout the country to the support of the republican ticket as sustaining the charge.

The Star has referred to this matter before. It returns to the subject with the same expressions of condemnation for a policy so unwarranted, so dangerous, so thoroughly unAmerican. No such line has been drawn in this fight. No such line can be drawn. The merest glance at the divisions show that. There are wage earners for silver as there are wage earners against silver. There are business men for silve as there are business men against silver. The personnel of the two national tickets themselves may be cited to stlence so stupid a conception of things. The republicans are led by a lawyer and a man of business The democrats are led by a lawyer and a man of business. It so happens, too, that Mr. Hobart and Mr. Sewall are men of the same business grasp and grade. Each is a leader in business circles at home. Each has the entire confidence of all with whom he is associated-the men whose invest ments are joined with lis, as well as the men who draw wages from enterprises which he assists in conducting. Mr. Hobart is interested in railroads, banks and manufactories, and so is Mr. Sewall. How can it with the slightest truth, therefore, be said that on the one side are all the rich. seeking for further advantages, and on the other the deserving poor, making a stand for opportunity and comfortable existence? Surely the country is in trouble enough without berrowing any, or manufacturing it. The lines of combat may not have been wisely chosen. Very many men of worth and eminence think that they have not been; that the financial question is not one lending itself to satisfactory settlement by means of marching clubs and popular oratory. But be that as it may, there is no warrant whatever for the shout of the revolutionist on either side; and the side to shelter, as it does shelter, all sorts and conditions of men. They may not at all times prosper as they would like and deserve to prosper. But in their most untoward condition they are better off than they would be under any other form of government, and the man who seeks to change the conditions, by arraying one section against another, or men in one walk of life against men in another, is an enemy of free institutions.

which raises it, or tolerates it, will deserve

A Portuguese Hero.

Portugal has planned a great to-do in honor of the memory of that daring voyager and red-handed conqueror Vasco da Gama, who sailed from Lisbon July 8, 1497, in search of countries then unknown to Europe and who was one of the most successful of the fifteenth century explorers. In those days Portugal was a power; ambitious to become greater and richer than any of its associates or enemies. Hence there was no lack of opportunity for courageous and skilful navigators. Equipped from the royal stores, Vasco da Gama salled vaguely down the African coast and eastward until he discovered India; a find which ranks second only to that made by Christopher Columbus in 1492. A born warrior and possessed of the cruel qualities which have invariably been prominent features in men who have successfully ruled savage peoples, Vasco da Gama established Portuguese government in India and provided the country of his birth with means of subsistence that have since saved its very life. But for da Gama's piracy-which has been duplicated in a minor way even in this country-Portugal might easily have ceased to exist as an independent nation many years ago. It is therefore fitting that Portugal should celebrate an anniversary which means so much to it, and it is not surprising that Vasco da Gama should be lauded by his grateful country-

The Star has expressed the belief that two salient features of the platform adopted at Chicago-free silver and anti-civil servicewould, if transmuted into law, do great injury to the material interests of the District of Columbia. The question has naturally been much discussed among Washingtonians; some local anwers to it appear in the news columns of this issue. There is, of course, diversity of opinion, but the bulk of belief is decidedly favorable to The Star's non-partisan contention. The matter thus gathered together and published should be deeply interesting to every individual who is concerned as to the welfare of the national capital. The extent to which personal affability seems to figure in the campaign may make it necessary to provide, in addition to the usual corps of stenographers and essayists, a few sturdy and reliable baby-kissers. It may not be improper to express the friendly hope that Mr. Bland has a good hired man who is competent to look after the farm.

Try to Be Cool. Throughout the greater portion of the United States the heat during the post nine or ten days has been dangerously intense. Hundreds of human beings have succumbed to its deadly power, while thousands of horses have been killed by the unwonted fierceness of the sun's rays. The number of casualties in the rural districts has been extremely small, but in the towns, and especially in the cities where narrow streets and high buildings are common, the death rate has been alarming. There is nothing surprising in this, for even in the hottest weather there are considerable differences between the thermometric figures in town and country; those differences, however, will not alone explain the relative mortality; the fact is that a dweller in the country is much more careful of himself on an extremely hot day than is the city dweller. Up to this time the residents of Washington have suffered much less from the extreme heat than have the people who live in cities far north of this, but prostrations and sudden deaths testify to an atmospheric state of affairs locally that has gone beyond the merely uncom fortable stage. All care should be taken to reserve health. Suitable clothing should worn, suitable food eaten, alcoholic drinks ought under no circumstances to b imbibed, the hours of labor should, wherever possible, be reduced to the minimum, and sound common sense be given a chance to exercise itself. The majority of Washingtonians are probably wearing seasonable garb, except as to headgear. The straw hat has its virtues, but unless it appens to have a fresh cabbage leaf fastened inside it does not afford the head such protection as the average head needs at a time like this. Reasonable precautions instantly taken may enable Washingtonians whose lives are now unnecessarily imperiled to enjoy the delightful temperatures that are coming and that will soon be here. To be really cool may not be possible, but that is a good reason why we should do our best to be cool.

Whether the temperature be high or low, man can, if he will, take care of himself but the brutes which man has brought nto subjection to himself are mainly dependent upon their proprietors for even a reasonable degree of comfort. Every person owning a horse should see to it that whatever may be necessary to protec "man's best friend" from the flerce heat of the torrid wave be done at once. There should be no approach to fast driving unless some great emergency has to be met, and there ought to be frequent applications of cold water to horses' heads and mouths and nostrils. Dogs and cats, too, should not be neglected; an ample supply of drinking water should be conveniently located.

Mr. Bryan seems entirely equal to the task of centering attention upon himself. Whether Sewall or Watson be recognized as the vice presidential nominee, it may be regarded as pretty sure that the tail of the ticket will not wag the dog.

There is not a great deal in a name, yet it is not unfair to assume that Secretary Smith would have found it less easy to impress the public with his personality if he had been christened "John" instead of "Hoke."

The campaign enthusiasm now manifested is calculated to invite a train of reminiscence in the President's mind. It is not many years ago when he was the popu lar target for bouquets.

Mr. Watson would be pleased if Mr Bryan and Mr. Sewall could make some arrangement to let the democratic performance have three rings instead of only two

He lectured at the top of his voice, and people began to fan and perspire out of mere sympathy. Presently a baby began to cry. Its father did his best to calm it, but its wail arose higher and higher. The promulgator of misery turned around and glared at the infant. Finding his hypnotic efforts of no avail, he said:

Ripans Tabules.

Chas. G. Marriott, a farmer, about 48 years of age, living at Downs, Oklahome Territory, says of Ripans Tabules: "I used to be troubled with dyspepsia a great deal, but since last April I have not known what it feels like. I would have sour stomach and beich up anything the least bit greasy as sure as I eat it. I saw Ripans Tabules advertised in a St. Louis paper and decided to try them, but could not get them at the drug store here, and so when I went to Guthrie I found some of them and have never been without them since. I went to pretty near every drug store in the town before I could find them. I do not see why so good a medicine cannot be found in every drug store. I used to drink red liquor, but have no desire for it Low. I can can eat ham and beans, or cabbage boiled with fat meat-in fact, I can digest anything I eat without any trouble whatever. I have always lived on a farm and have done many a hard day's work when I was sick enough to be in bed-all on account of indiges-

New interest in Ladies' Shirt Waists—even those well supplied will want one of these new waists.

$1.48 Instead of $2.98.

They are Imported Shirt Waists, never before shown in Washington, and sold only in one New York establishment, at $2.98 each. They are made of French Zephyr in checks of navy and white, ciel and white, pink and white. The laundered collar and cuffs are hemstitched. The shirt front has two sets of buttons, preventing gaping.

Other Bargains.

You know of the first floor bargain tables filled with Laundered Shirt Waists at 48c, 74c, 98c and $1.48 for choice. A change tomorrow in your favor, as follows:

The $1.48 Table

-will contain the new Waists described above. These new Waists are so superior that those previously on this table will be moved to the 98c

The o8c. Table

-will hold the expensive Grass Linen and White Dotted Swiss Waists, last of various styles that sold up to $2.50 each. Weren't they worthy of the $1.48 bargain table? Will they stay long on the 98c table?

The 74c. Table.

-This table will be brightened tomorrow with the Striped French Dimity Waists that were on the 98c table-the original prices were as much as $1.98 each.

The 48c. Table.

-Odds and ends from the $1.48, 98c and 74c tables will make a grand total, including all sizes from 32 to 40 in one style or another. Note that the French Lawn Waists in black and white effects will be among the contents of this 48c table.

For Stout Ladies. The Shirt Waists with crush collar and soft finish cuffs. As stylish as those with stiffly laundered collars. And even better bargains-39c and 69c for Waists that were as much as $2.48. Sizes up to 44 inches bust measure.

TWENTY-NINE CENTS Is very little to pay for an article of wearing apparel. Any Laundered Shirt Waist is a literal pick up at that price. But the Waist which we've been offering at that price is a representative example of what bargains are really gotten here. It is made of the finest percale-one might call it laundry proof, so well does it stand the wear and tear of washing. The sleeves are extra large ones. There's a yoke back, link cuffs, stud front. Each one has this year's new "double decker" collar. Some are detachable, or, if you prefer, we can give you Waists with fixed collars. There are, moreover, a great many made of this season's popular fabric, grass linen. They come in all colors and patterns.

WHITE GOODS, 9%c.

They were formerly 69c. to $1.19.
